No Show Tonight.

Yesterday afternoon Manager Swift of the Temple Opera House received the following telegram from the manager of "Satania," the show booked for tonight:

"TEXARKANA, ARK., Nov. 9. W. E. Swift, Palestine: Legal complications compel company to remain here. Unable to fill date. Regret it exceedingly. DAVID TRAITTEL."

The advance sale for this attraction exceeded that of any other this season, and the cancellation is a great disappointment to Mr. Swift and the opera house patrons.

ROBINSON GETS DALLAS OFFICE

Lyons' Man Named Postmaster for That City.

Dallas, Texas, Nov. 10.—Private dispatches from Washington state the president has nominated D. A. Robinson to be postmaster at Dallas.
This is a victory for Republican State Chairman Lyon.

U. D. C. Meeting.

The Benedette B. Tobin Chapter, U. D. C., met Friday, Nov. 6, at the elegant home of Mrs. A. R. Howard, and all unfinished business before the chapter was arranged satisfactorily.

In response to a communication from Mrs. Cone Johnson, the chapter decided to send a box of books, magazines and other useful articles, beside a box of good things to eat, to the Confederate Veterans at Austin for Thanksgiving, as a slight token of the kindly regard this chapter holds for their heroic deeds in the past, and for their devotion to the cause so dear and sacred to Southern hearts.

Delegates to the State convention were selected as follows:
Mesdames Jack Word, Howard, E. E. Price, Bryan, Frank Jones and Eva S. Norwood. Alternates—Mesdames Cad Williams, Jessie Hamilton, Watson, M. De Adams and F. Evans. Miss Stevie Allen was unanimously requested to attend as maid of honor and Miss Ethel Word as sponsor for the John H. Reagan Camp of Veterans.

Our able and efficient historian took charge of the assembled Daughters in an interesting history class. The bright faces and ready responses clearly evinced interest in the pleasant and instructive program, interspersed with charming musical selections rendered by Mrs. Amelia Adams and Miss Ethel Word. Accompanied by Miss Stevie Allen, Miss Ethel sang that perfect gem among many jewels, "The Last Rose of Summer," a song so touchingly sweet and beautiful that it never grows old and never fails to awaken responsive throbs in every heart. Mrs. Adams has a magnificent voice, soft and sweet, and the spacious parlors were filled with its melody.

Captain Allen gave us many pleasing and interesting incidents of his war career, and character sketches of many beloved Southern generals.

It was decided that we shall meet at 3 o'clock hereafter; also that during the winter months we will meet at private residences.

The program for the next meeting, which will be held with Mrs. John Word on Dec. 11, 1903, was read.
Mrs. Rena Bryan was appointed to write resolutions of respect for the lamented death of Miss Addie Woodward.

Delicious refreshments were served by our beloved hostess, and a perfectly delightful social time was enjoyed by all. Mrs. J. W. N., Sec'y. Pro Tem.

Views of Honorables.

London's Artillery Company Will Act as Missionary to England.
The Honorable Artillery Company of London were highly pleased with their visit to Washington and were especially delighted with their reception by the president and Mrs. Roosevelt at the White House, says the New York Times.

They speak enthusiastically of the generous hospitality that has been shown them and promise to proclaim in England the wonderful experiences of their trip. One of the Honorables said before leaving the Arlington for Niagara Falls:

"Coming over on the steamer we were torn with conflicting feelings. We did not know how you people would receive us. Some of us honestly believed that our reception by all except the Boston Ancients would be courteous, but lacking in cordiality. When I heard the cheer that greeted us upon landing in Boston you could have knocked me down with a feather.

"All doubts were removed. We were literally taken off our feet by the hospitable Bostonians, and we haven't had time to collect ourselves since.

"The people here are more cordial than any we have ever met. There seems to be nothing you can't do for us. I think I can speak for our entire company when I say that we have never so thoroughly enjoyed anything and that the visit to America has been a revelation.

"To me, at least, and I know it is the same with a large number of our fellows, the experiences of this trip have completely changed our ideas of America and Americans.

"The people of England don't realize what you people are over here. But every member of the Honorable Company will be a missionary in the best sense of the word and endeavor to correct the false impressions that exist."

LE ROY DRESSER'S TRAITS.

Faith of Friends to the Shipbuilding Trust Set's Noted Witness.

The sisters of Daniel Le Roy Dresser, one of the chief witnesses in the shipbuilding trust suit, Mrs. John Nichols Brown and Mrs. George W. Vanderbilt, can gain no more confidence than they possess in his strict integrity, says a Newport special to the New York World. But if it were possible their faith in him has been increased by the later developments regarding the sale of the Bethlehem steel plant to him for the Shipbuilding company. They announce to their friends in Newport that they will stand by their brother with their fortunes and their good names, both as regards his transactions with Charles M. Schwab and his conduct as president of the affairs of the Trust Company of the Republic.

But Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Vanderbilt have no need to reassure those who know Le Roy Dresser. The estimation in which he is held was well illustrated when two of his friends met him the other day. Said one:

"They can talk as they please about Le Roy Dresser, but I know him. He's as true as steel."

"A precious poor simile in these days," dryly replied the other. "He's as true as gold."

Those who were Newport high school boys trusted Le Roy Dresser when he was one of them. When the biggest among them he played football and baseball with rich boys and poor boys—long before he married a rich woman and his sisters were wed to rich men. Growing older, men trusted him when he entered the Narragansett Web company in Newport and backed him liberally subscribing to the stock. The venture was a failure, and the investors lost every dollar they put in it, but they did not lose confidence in Le Roy Dresser.
